SEEK CHANGE IN WAGNER ACT

Senator's Proposal To Modify Labor Bill May Delay Adjournment

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Vandenberg's Plan Expected To Develop Conflict Over One Sided Legislation

By The Associated Press WASHINGTON July 24—Senator Vandenberg Republican of Michigan completed the talk of early congressional adjournment today by announcing he would offer amendments to the Wagner labor relations act when the senate takes up wage hour legislation next week

His statement foreshadowed a major conflict over expanding what critics have called one sided legislation in favor of labor unions The Wagner act guarantees the right of workers to organize unions and to bargain collectively

Vandenberg's amendments would

Forbid coercion by unions of [illegible]down strikes compulsory union assessments for political purposes and strikes called without approval of a majority of employes

Forbid citizens from serving [illegible]union agents or officers

Permit employers to ask the labor board for collective bargaining elections

Require both parties to a collective bargaining agreement to sign a written contract

Forbid unions guilty of unfair labor practices from collecting dues or serving as collective bargaining agents

Democratic indications that the Vandenberg proposal would provoke long debate over the wage and hour bill many legislators viewed hopeful of winding up the session early in August

A general discussion was held to strip the program down to bill now ready for action with [illegible]ou waiting for committee to prepare additional measures such as general farm legislation or a government reorganization bill

Would Roosevelt Views

Whether President Roosevelt would agree to this modified schedule was expected to be learned in week end conferences between the chief executive and Senator Barkley Democrat of Kentucky new majority leader

Barkley accompanied the President on a Potomac cruise Other guests were Senator and Mrs Robert La Follette Progressive of Wisconsin and the former's brother Gov Phil La Follette of Wisconsin

Barkley before leaving for the trip indicated he was willing to call all the program somewhat He insisted however that congress would stay here long enough to act on four major bills

1 The wage hour bill authorizing a board to fix minimum wages no higher than 40 cents an hour and a maximum work week of not less than 40 hours

2 Loans and grants for low cost housing developments approved yesterday by the senate labor committee

3 Plugging of tax loopholes The senate house committees expects to complete legislation soon as a result of its investigation

4 The skeleton bill to speed up lower federal courts probably ready for senate debate in a week

NO CLUES FOUND IN MURDER OF DOCTOR

Investigators Confronted by Blank Wall as All Leads Fail

By The Associated Press PROVIDENCE R. I July 24—Police investigation in the slaying of Dr George W Webster ran up against a blank wall today with the statement of Deputy Police Superintendent James J Cusick that all known leads have been exhausted

Cusick said eight days of work have achieved exactly nothing so far as learning the identity of the slayer of the fashionable obstetrician is concerned

Seeking to open a new avenue of investigation he ordered officers into a new search for the army automatic with which Dr Webster was slain in the doorway of his home July 16

The search centered in vacant lots of the east side in the area surrounding the Webster town house Aided by workmen the detectives cleared weeds from vacant lots and poked under porches and in out-of-the-way places where the pistol might have been discarded.

A box partially filled with 45 calibre cartridges, had been found under a porch some distance from the Webster house but ballistics experts of the Remington Arms Co. at Bridgeport, said they could not be certain the bullets that killed Dr. Webster had come from that box.

Davey, 53, Has No Thought of Leaving Politics

Says He Gets Kick Out of Job and Doesn't Need It For Money

By The Associated Press COLUMBUS O July 24 On the eve of his 53rd birthday Gov Martin L Davey mused today over the vagaries of politics as I remarked he would be let off easy

But the doctor of [illegible] pestiferal vegetables [illegible] of Kent O has no intention of quitting the game it will be will have rounded out a quarter century at the end of his present term

In all frankness [illegible] don't know how long I will stay in politics

I do know that I will not work so hard for any [illegible] office for any amount of [illegible] even if I would be better off financially and physically if I [illegible] time to my private business

With the Davey Tree Co [illegible] greasing nicely in the hands of a well trained staff the governor said he could knock off work and spend the rest of his life golfing

Politics however grips him with a fascination similar to a spell and he prefers to spend his time hatching over financial bulletins and other problems of state instead of watching the waves roll in from a comfortable chair at a seaside resort

He frankly admits he has a need of a special desire for more money and that perhaps is one of the reasons he gets such a kick out of politics

There is a profound satisfaction the governor said in not having to worry about a future meal ticket knowing that I don't need this job and would be better off without it

For that reason he added he can afford to be more independent in office and do more straight thinking

VEILED FORECAST OF WAR MADE IN IL DUCE'S PAPER

Slashing Editorial Classes Payment of U. S. War Debts as One of International "Fictions" of Today.

By The Associated Press MILAN Italy, July 24—Il Popolo D Italia, Premier Mussolini's mouthpiece declared today that "reality" some day would overwhelm international "make believe" and well informed persons said this "reality" was war

The newspaper's slashing 750-word editorial was attributed to Il Duce himself

It cited as one item of a group of "fictions" the belief that some day World war debts to the United States would be paid Another "fiction," the newspaper said, was the belief abroad that Valencia is the real seat of the Spanish government.

"One day all these castles of cards will be overwhelmed by reality which in all time has had a single, grave and unsubstitutable name," the article added without using the word "war."

But the remark quickly was given a martial significance by authoritative sources

Referring to the war debt "fiction" Il Popolo said

"The people continue to pretend they believe these debts will be paid one day.

"Now everyone knows this is materially and above all, morally impossible Nevertheless when the fateful dates June 15 and Dec. 15 come around the European governments inform America they find it impossible to pay.

"America takes note of this and puts it on the order of the day. The fiction nevertheless remains and carries in its lap the damaging elements of all embalmed fictions."

On the "fiction" of the League of Nations

"The paradox is that America after having invented the league for external use has always energetically refused to take any part in it The father abandoned his creature as soon as it was born and the founding began [illegible] with the mark of this permanent unhappiness."

GALION, July 24—The carnival which has been under way here since Monday, and was slated to continue through Saturday, left town today. The shows were not open Friday night after the company had been ordered by the Crawford county sheriff to leave the county.

The carnival had located at the Galion airport outside the west city limits. After complaints received here, the sheriff ordered the shows out. It was alleged that many people had lost big amounts of money in the various concessions of the carnival, and that several of the shows were not the type to be witnessed by the young people who were the biggest patrons.

The shows had operated with power from municipal light plant here, and power was shut off Friday afternoon.

HARDIN CO. CROP FINDINGS LISTED

State Experiment Station Reports on Tests in Rich Marsh Lands.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., July 24—From the findings of the muckland experiment station on the Scioto marsh, west of Kenton, today came recommendations that were to rehabilitate some 18,000 acres of marshland in this county and the muck lands of Ohio.

Development of new varieties of muck crops, testing of insecticides and the use of various types of fertilizers today resulted in new formulae, different seeds and a more uniform system of cultivation.

Potatoes, cabbage, lettuce, celery, carrots and other vegetables now are largely replacing the onion crop of former years. Corn and wheat also are raised, as is peppermint. Some of the recommendations made, as result of the past year's experiments include:

The use of a 3-9-18 ratio of potash, phosphorus and nitrogen, applied 50 pounds per acre for the best results.

The use of a spray consisting of five parts of copper, 2½ parts of lime and 50 parts of water for potatoes, applied at 10-day intervals during the growing season.

The use of one ounce of mercury to 10 gallons of water, sprayed on the soil surrounding onion plants for control of the onion maggot.

The use of one part of paris green to seven parts of flour for treatment of cabbage during the early growth, and three pounds of derris root containing four per cent rotenone to 17 pounds of talc, tobacco dust or gypsum during the late stages.

The use of an overhead irrigation system, whenever practical, in parts equal to that depleted by evaporation, during the growing season.

WEED CUTTING TO START SOON

Plans For General City Clean-up Announced by Safety-Service Director.

Marion's campaign against weeds which have been growing rank on approximately 2,000 lots this summer, will get under way in earnest within the next two weeks, City Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth said today. The first step will be the assigning of relief employes to the job of cutting the 25-mile strip between curbings and sidewalks.

Launched officially by council July 14, the drive has received action by many property owners. City Clerk Harry Brookshire said. He said one individual who owns 300 vacant lots here has employed men to clear them. In addition the city health department, whose province the campaign comes by virtue of a 1921 ordinance, has sent out orders to about 50 other landowners.

Dr. M. M. Weinbaum, city health commissioner, said the work is progressing somewhat more slowly than might be. The difficulty in locating the owners, many of whom live out of the city or state is one of the problems, he said.

It was also stated by one official, who declined to be quoted, that the city does not have funds to have the lots mowed by crews as the old ordinance provides. Under the ordinance, the health department may order the owner to cut the weed and if the cutting is not done within five days after notification, the city may do the work. The cost in that event is assessed against the owner or the tax duplicate and becomes a lien on the property. The official said he does not believe the city can afford to take the chance of spending the money back through taxes.

Two city workmen with a mowing machine will begin cutting between the curbings and sidewalks and also a small strip of the weedy lots adjoining sidewalks shortly, Mr. Ruth said. He estimated that of the 100 miles of streets in the city, 25 miles are fronted with weed-choked lots. He said the task will require most of the summer.

TENSION EASED IN NORTH CHINA

Withdrawal of Chinese Troops From Peiping Meets Japanese Demands.

By The Associated Press

TIENTSIN, July 24—War tension in North China apparently eased today though the influx of Japanese war supplies continued and seasoned observers pointed to danger spots where friction might renew the war-like dispute between Chinese and Japanese military forces.

The Chinese withdrawal of the 37th division from the Peiping area met Japan's first condition for settling the trouble that broke out July 7 during Japanese troop maneuvers west of Peiping and touched off the crisis.

Transportation and other activities in the Hopeh-Chahar district approached normal for the first time the tension arose.

A Japanese army officer at Tangku, Tientsin's seaport, declared, however, that "this war is not yet over by any means."

Two Japanese merchantmen were anchored at Tangku unloading light tanks and munitions on the crowded docks that have become a vital part of Japan's system for bringing men and war supplies into China by sea.

Three transports were expected to dock tomorrow, bringing more than 3,000 soldiers to add to the 9,000 reinforcements poured into the Hopeh-Chahar region in the past two weeks.

Japanese attempted unsuccessfully to halt the unloading of a German vessel bringing rifles, munitions and machines destined for the Chinese army.

On the south side of the river facing this hive of Japanese activity more than 5,000 Chinese troops were quartered.

Observers believed the situation south of Peiping-Hankow railway, with Japanese and Chinese troops still relatively close together by mutual agreement railway traffic was permitted to resume in this no-man's-land.

The Toyko version of the North China truce included a provision for joint Sino-Japanese action against Communists considered here the most important part of the agreement since it would give the Japanese army a free man in chasing down anything it labeled Communism.

Clarke Wagner Act Violated

The steel workers' report declared the refusal of Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Bethlehem Steel to sign written wage agreements violated the Wagner labor relations act.

"The refusal stamps the leaders of these corporations as the most reactionary and vicious industrialists in the country," it said.

(The labor relations board recessed yesterday a hearing into charges that Republic Steel violated the Wagner act before and during the strike.)

"Purported attempts on the part of some of the strike pickets to delay the introduction into the plants of food for strike breakers through the use of the mails, has produced extraordinary activity on the part of the federal government in securing indictments against the strike pickets.

"Because of direct instructions from Attorney General Cummings, the federal district attorney in Cleveland, where these indictments were returned, attempted to bring on for trial the cases against these pickets only three days after they were arraigned before the judge without even affording an opportunity to obtain and advise with counsel."

(The senate postoffice committee heard testimony of postal officials that they would not deliver packages of food to strikebound plants because it was unusual service. The committee decided there was no justification for a further inquiry into charges of mail interference.)

The SWOC report said steel workers "by the hundreds" had been jailed for days on no charges and had been freed only after promising not to sue for false arrest.

It declared Governor Davey of Ohio sent the National Guard into strike areas for the express purpose of breaking the strike.

BAILEY BACKED FOR SENATOR

Arkansas Governor Party's Choice To Take Place of Joseph T. Robinson.

By The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 24—Governor Carl E. Bailey held the coveted Democratic senatorial nomination today but still was faced with threats of a battle at the polls for the toga of the late Joseph T. Robinson.

The state Democratic committee yesterday ignored agitation for a party primary and accorded to the ruddy-faced executive the nomination that usually is tantamount to election in Arkansas.

Eliminated as a possible opponent was Congressman Claude E. Fuller, who announced: "I don't intend to run in the general election," now tentatively set for Sept. 14. He previously had said he would be a candidate if the committee called a primary.

J. Rosser Venable, Little Rock World war veteran who ran against Robinson in the 1936 primary, said he would run as an independent "if no one else gets in the race by midnight next Tuesday."

An opponent of Bailey in last year's gubernatorial election, Orsa Cobb, state Republican leader, urged members of his party to support an independent if one enters.

Robert Prather, member of the state committee who favored a primary, announced he would seek to assemble a state convention "to nominate a candidate to represent the Democrats in this state in the special election."

The 42-year-old Bailey, who rose from a rural Missouri school teacher to Arkansas' highest office, said he expected to issue a call "within a few days" for the election.

"I can't comment on that," was his retort to a query as to whether he had definitely decided against making an interim appointment to the senate.

He previously announced he had discussed this matter with Postmaster General James A. Farley. Bailey said he explained to Farley he "preferred to make no interim appointment since a special election to fill the vacancy must be held between Sept. 14 and Nov. 12." He frequently has been identified as "a Roosevelt man."

Smiling broadly, the governor said, "I'm happy about it as you folks are," when he received the nomination.

His was the only nomination offered before the committee session and the vote was by acclamation.

YOUTH CRASHES 2 U. S. PLANES

16-Year-Old "Borrows" National Guard Ship, Crashes Into Another.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 24—Julius Balmut, 16, was held in police detention home today after a head-on collision at Cleveland airport of two Ohio National Guard planes, one of which he told police he borrowed to fly to Washington to discuss an invention with government officials.

Young Balmut escaped injury but both the ship he was in and that into which he crashed were badly damaged, airport officials reported.

Attendants at the airport said the boy had been loitering about the National Guard hangar for several hours, talking to pilots and mechanics, asking questions about flying, and train on equipment.

At about 10:30 last night, they said, he succeeded in getting into a flying suit, helmet and parachute.

Three army biplanes flown here from Wright field, Dayton, by Capt. Harry Armstrong, John G. Moore and Patrick W. Timberlake, stood outside the hangar, ready for a return flight to Wright field.

The boy climbed into the cockpit of Timberlake's plane, started the motor, roared out on the field 100 feet or more, wheeled the plane about and headed straight for the hangar, crashing head-on into Armstrong's plane at a speed, airport attendants said, of 35 or 40 miles an hour.

The engine and entire fuselage of Armstrong's plane were smashed along with part of the upper wing, while the propeller of the moving plane was shattered and both wings damaged. The planes were valued at $35,000 each.

The boy was arrested as he climbed out of the cockpit by Patrolman Jacob Moell.

"You see I've invented an airplane wing that can be expanded or contracted for different conditions of flying," he said. "And then, only last week, I read about such a thing in a magazine. I thought to myself, what would my future be if that magazine beat me to it? I had to see the secretary of war right away.

"I can't understand what happened. I got the motor started and ready to take off, but the plane wouldn't go straight. I kept pushing my right foot down hard, which was the correct thing to do, but I crashed into the other plane."

"Borrowed" Flying Suit

"I never had tried to fly before but I've been up in a plane for 40 minutes and I've read and studied a lot. I had no fear of the plane. I was sure I could fly it to Washington and land it there."

Julius explained that with the idea of the Washington trip in mind, he had "borrowed" a flyer's costume from the Ohio National Guard hangar while no one was looking. Then he had inspected the three army planes, to choose one for the trip.

"The first one I looked at didn't have enough gasoline, so I passed it up," he said. "The second one had no radio and that wouldn't do, either. The third one was all right.

"I climbed into it and then I thought that the noise of the motor would attract attention before I could get off the ground. I sat there an hour and a half, waiting for another plane to come in. I thought its noise would cover up what I was doing.

"Finally one came in and I started. No, I wasn't afraid. You see I know a great deal about flying."

MAN ENDS LIFE AT SON'S HOME

Acid Causes Death of John E. Hawk of Near Prospect; Funeral Monday.

John E. Hawk, 57, of near Prospect, took his own life yesterday afternoon at the home of a son, Ralph Hawk of 245 Oliney avenue, by drinking an ounce of carbolic acid.

County Prosecutor Paul D. Michel, after conducting an investigation with Sheriff Fred F. Miller, and a Marion physician who was called to the home, made a report to County Coroner M. F. Axtheim, who returned a verdict of suicide by carbolic acid poisoning.

Members of Hawk's family said they knew of no motive for his act and that he had not threatened to take his life. Hawk, authorities said, swallowed the acid in the bathroom of the residence and collapsed on the front room floor after placing the empty bottle on a table and telling his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Myrla Hawk, "Well I have done it." He died shortly after arrival of a physician who had been summoned by a phone call from Mrs. Hawk.

The time of the suicide was fixed at 2 p. m. by Prosecutor Michel, who went to the home a short time afterward. Hawk's daughter-in-law, who was alone in the house, said he had visited there about 10 a. m. and again at noon. He left the second time, and it was then, authorities said, that he purchased the carbolic acid at an uptown drug store.

Authorities said the acid was bought about 1 o'clock and that Hawk had signed for it, explaining that he intended to take it to his farm for stock use.

Mr. Hawk, who came to Marion from Athens county nine years ago, had been employed as a janitor at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., nearly the entire time. Six months ago he moved to the farm near Prospect but was continuing his employment here, and working at the farm during his spare time.

Mr. Hawk was born Oct. 11, 1880, at Guysville, in Athens county, son of G. W. Hawk and Margaret Spoonell Hawk. His father, a native of New Jersey, is living in Guysville. He was married Dec. 31, 1902, at Guysville to Miss Vina Eliza Buck.

Surviving with the father and widow are seven children, Glen, Harold and Ralph of Marion, Floyd of Prospect, Mrs. Seldon Baker of Pomeroy, Mrs. O. D. Kincaid of Mansfield and Mrs. Francis Lyon of Caledonia, 17 grandchildren, three sisters, Mrs. Charles Christy of Guysville, Mrs. Henry Koehler of Pomeroy and Mrs. Clarence Calmer of Athens, and a brother Rome Hawk of Pomeroy.

The funeral will be conducted Monday at 2 p. m. at the Asbury M. E. church in Guysville, followed by burial in the church cemetery. The body may be viewed at the W. C. Boyd funeral home on West Columbia street tonight and at the home from 2:30 p. m. Sunday until 8 a. m. Monday when the body will be taken to Guysville.

SPANISH INSURGENTS CLAIM BIG VICTORY

Franco Forces Tell of Defeat of Government Forces Near Madrid.

By The Associated Press

HENDAYE, FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER, July 24—Generalissimo Francisco Franco today claimed a "brilliant victory" on Madrid's western front.

A communique from his general headquarters, while acknowledging a lack of information as to details, asserted the insurgents were victorious in a counter-drive against government troops in the Brunete sector, 15 miles west of Madrid, near the Guadarama river.

It was known, however, the communique said, that Franco's men had captured a large amount of war materials from a defeated portion of the government army that for more than two weeks has been trying to encircle the insurgents camped on the western edge of the capital.

Earlier advices from the insurgent side said that Franco's war machine had blasted its way into Brunete, a shell-combed town at the tip of the 100-square-mile salient which Gen. Jose Miaja had carved into the insurgent rear-guard positions.

These versions of the battle said Franco's infantrymen entered Brunete last night after a half-hour of house-to-house combat and forced the government soldiers back to a cemetery.

There, as darkness shrouded the burial ground, hastily-emplaced machine guns stemmed the insurgent rush.

A generator expected to create charge of more than 3,000,000 volts is being built at Pittsburgh for experiments in atom smashing.

Nudist Conclave Opens; Styles Not Among Problems

LOS ANGELES, July 24—They're not dressing at the convention.

Bronzed young Hubert Glassey announced today he expected at least 200 delegates and visitors at his nudist conclave at the Sun Tanners' resort at Soquel, Calif., Sept. 11-12.

At the convention will be discussed problems of individual groups, standards of membership, finance, public relations and other matters affecting nudism. There also will be interclub games.

Glassey, a Syracuse university psychology graduate, is president and founder of fraternity Elysia, which has a nudist resort in a secluded canyon 20 miles from here. He recently chartered the Sun Tanners of Soquel as the Beta chapter of fraternity Elysia, first incorporated nudist group in the west. Soquel is near Santa Cruz.

Glassey and James F. Curl, head of the Sun Tanners, entered the charter agreement to link up the nudist movement in the west. Curl is a deputy sheriff and chamber of commerce member.

Glassey said 11 active nudist groups in California, two in Washington and one each in Oregon and Colorado are expected to send delegates.

Enrollment at Glassey's 40-acre resort, which has ranch houses, volley ball courts and a swimming pool, is largely of business and professional persons—75 per cent of them university trained. They range from physicists to plumbers.

PEACE IN BUFFALO FOOD STRIKE SOUGHT

New York Tries "Little Wagner Act" on Tieup of Provisions.

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 24—New York state pressed the untried "Little Wagner Act" into service today to mediate twin strikes that menaced the basic food supply of 1,000,000 persons.

Dr. John R. Boland, chairman of a commission created to handle labor problems outside the jurisdiction of the national labor relations board, offered his personal services as mediator.

Bitter rivals on the nation's labor front, the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization have polled their efforts here to tie up 42 wholesale butter and egg markets and close three meat packing plants.

CIO pickets paraded before wholesale creameries and warehouses where truck drivers affiliated with AFL's teamsters union struck for higher wages, shorter hours and a preferential closed shop.

In turn, truckers ordered their union members not to deliver at packing plants where CIO workers asked union recognition.

A merchants' committee headed by Raymond Wattles pleaded with Governor Herbert W. Lehman yesterday to intervene "in the interests of justice and the solution of a very serious situation."

Meanwhile, poultry and dairy products, flour, sugar and canned goods ran low on store shelves, retail grocers estimated that by Monday there would be a serious shortage.

OHIO LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED BY DAVEY

lee which controls what subjects are to be voted on.

Speaker pro tem Al Kalb, Democrat of Ottawa of the house and both house clerks were among those declaring there was a disagreement.

"There's nothing left for the governor to do but adjourn the session. The journals of both houses are an absolute disagreement," said Clerk Dwight L. Marchette of the senate.

But Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder took the opposite view, contending that a previous house resolution to adjourn July 24 and the senate's failure to act on the resolution did not amount to disagreement.

He said the investigations of the highway and liquor departments and state civil service would go forward regardless of the legislative action with committee members paying their own expenses since the governor vetoed an expense appropriation item from the biennial budget bill.

Nearly 400 letters to 4-H members in the county describing the Tri-County club camp to be held in Seneca county which will be open to 4-H members from Aug. 8 to 13, will be sent out Monday from the office of County Agent S. L. Arnwine. Approximately 50 young people from Marion county are expected to attend, 25 for the junior camp from Aug. 8 to Aug. 11 inclusive, and 25 for the senior camp from Aug. 11 to Aug. 14 inclusive.

The letters have been prepared by Raymond W. Pifer, assistant county agent in charge of 4-H club work.

Near County Line

The camp is located at Camp Wyandot-Seneca county line and may be reached by taking Route 23 to Upper Sandusky, Route 53 north to McCutchenville and turning right on a hard surfaced road at McCutchenville directly to camp. It is 15 miles from Upper Sandusky.

The capacity of the camp is 100 at a time, 25 each from Marion, Crawford and Wyandot counties. The junior camp is for boys and girls from 10 to 14 years of age and the senior camp for those from 15 to 20.

The program will include handicraft work, vespers, campfires, organized games, parties, swimming and boating, first aid instruction and nature study. The camp will be under the direction of extension agents from the three counties and official Red Cross life saving and public health nurses will be on duty.

Necessary Supplies

Campers should bring sheets, blankets, a pillow, all clothing, rubbers, comfortable shoes, toilet articles, wash basin, bathing suit, cap and slippers, clothing bag, etc. Mr. Pifer suggests Canvas cots, lights, overshoes, raincoat and mirror may also be taken.

Transportation must be furnished by the camper. Cards enclosed with the letters to members must be returned to the county agent's office by July 31 for reservations. The cost is $3.25 for each camper. The first reservations to be made will be used to fill the county's quota to the camp, Mr. Pifer said.

WPA REVIEWS HIGHWAY WORK

Marion and Surrounding Counties Share in Federal Program.

In the 8,600 miles of roads completed or under construction by WPA in Ohio in the two years of its existence are nine and a half miles in Marion county, according to an announcement from state WPA headquarters today. The cost in Marion county thus far is $2,900, according to the announcement.

All the roads in this county have been the secondary county roads or farm-to-market highways. The office of the county engineer has records showing that the DeCliff road, the LaRue-Prospect or Rayl-Uncapher pike, the Espyville road, and the Marseilles-Galion road have been worked on by WPA in this county. In addition there have been numerous small drainage projects for county roads. At present WPA is working on a small section a mile and a half west of Green Camp, straightening the Haberman curve.

Roads completed or under construction by WPA in nearby counties follow: Crawford, 17 miles, $32,074; Delaware, 15 miles, $56,-252; Hardin, 154 miles, $259,075; Morrow, 29 miles, $25,445, and Wyandot, 24½ miles, $44,300.

In the state the total cost was $37,650,000. Of this WPA is spending $33,000,000 and local communities, $4,650,000.

The figures do not include work on city streets, considerable of which has been done in Marion by WPA.

MISS FIRE BUT NO DAMAGE RESULTS

Firemen Sent To Wrong Address by Phone Call.

While city firemen were being sent to the wrong address, the quick work of a passerby, whose name was not learned, prevented possible serious damage at the Herman Hinton residence at 209 Plymouth street, by throwing a flaming coal oil stove which had exploded, from the house.

When the oil stove, which firemen said had apparently overflowed, burst out in flames, Mrs. Hinton turned in an alarm by telephone. In relaying the call to the fire station Company No. 1 was sent to 209 Summit street. Finding no fire at that address the chief's car was immediately sent to check the call and then went to the Plymouth street address.

When the chief's car arrived the burning oil stove had been removed and extinguished. Neither the residence or the stove was damaged, firemen said.

July 20 had been set as the date for opening of bids and awarding of contracts for the improvements.

DELAWARE COUNTY IN PINE RUST WAR

Delaware county will be among 23 counties in Ohio to be included in the government's fight against blister rust, a menace to the state's white pine trees. The Associated Press reported today from Columbus. At present work is being carried on by WPA workers in the southern part of the state, and will be extended north later.

Oscar J. Dowd of the United States department of agriculture, director of the drive, said the disease made a 60-mile southward advance in Ohio last year. The blister rust fungus travels sometimes for 100 miles from infected pine trees to cultivated black currant bushes where it goes through another stage of development before being carried by wind to pine trees again.

Every farm and city lot in the counties listed will be inspected by WPA workers for the black currant bush which will be destroyed. Dowd said only about 4,000 acres of white pine remain in Ohio now.

Western Story Writer Here To Visit Relatives

Ray Palmer Tracy of East Brinnerton, Wash., writer of western stories and novels and the creator of two familiar characters to readers of fiction of the west, "Poke Easy Jones and Short Legs Custer," is the guest of his uncle George Chenoy of East Center street and other relatives in Marion. Mr. Tracy, who is a former Marion resident, is enroute east to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Tracy of Chester, N. J., and to confer with his publishers in New York City.

The author, who sold the first story he ever wrote to the Argosy, then a monthly publication, writes of the things about which he knows, the oil fields, sheep and cattle ranches, wheat farms, and the forest rangers. The settings are in the west because that has been his home and the life and people have been his friends.

Some of his most recent writings have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and he has an article in a publication "The Open Road." One of his stories "Black Knight," is among a collection of boy's stories published under the title of "Boys Adventure," and his characters Poke Easy Jones and Short Legs Custer will appear in movies, he has been advised. The two characters, as well as the characters in all his stories are character comedy studies and there is little of the blood and thunder, bite-the-dust flavor to his novels. Among the magazines to which he contributes are "American Boy," "The Post," "Argosy," "West," "Western Romances," "Ranch Romances," and a number of other publications. His life in the west has taken him on the range, into the oil fields and into forestry work. His first story was "The Ranger of Sokiyou."

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbreath collection of Ohio historical written for The Associated Press.)

"TECUMH"

It is said that Gen. William T. Sherman is the only one of the many men of prominence that Ohio has given to the nation that have the name of an Indian. His middle name was Tecumseh.

When he was presented for baptism, the minister said the name Tecumseh was pagan and that he could not bestow a pagan name in a Christian sacrament.

But the boy spoke out plainly. "My father liked the name," he said, "I want to keep that name, and if you cannot christen me William Tecumseh I will get some one else to baptize me." The boy won the controversy and his name went on the church records as William Tecumseh Sherman.

His playmates cut the name to "Tecump."

The Wayside Christ

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. S. S. HARDY
Rector, St. Paul's Episcopal Church

The open road and by-ways lead to life out in the open. The open road is the symbol of the open life. The open road must ever serve as a fitting symbol of the Christian life, for we are all disciples of the Way. As Christ said, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." He is the Wayside Christ to follow Him is to find the finest, fullest, healthier life.

A few years ago in Ohio crowds were special on the highways to protect them from the danger of death. Since the empty cone is a symbol of life, and not of death, they were happily taken down. How sad it would be if these road-side shrines, in some real bodily form, were placed in all lonely spots along the road. And how beautiful, in the towns of Michigan, might be placed a wayside table. It would be an expression of Christ and His disciples as together they walked the wayside to Emmaus. Perhaps such little sanctuaries by the way would help some to company with Christ as they went along, to dine with Him as their unseen guest at the end of the day. And to come to know Him better in the breaking of bread.

Jesus truly was a lover of the open-road. He was ever on it ministering to those He met by the way. His was a life of the great-out-of-doors. He loved life at its freest, its happiest, and its healthiest. He came to convey that life to men. He longs to make each life abundant—full, healthy, happy, and free. "Behold! He said, "I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and sup with him and he with me." Not only is He prepared to be our companion by the way. He is also eager to join us when the journey of the day is done. It is He who sanctifies the open-road and enriches it with the fulness of life. Whether we journey near or far there is no need to be without Him, for He is the Christ of the Wayside—the Christ of the open-road.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Fatigue.

I RECENTLY told you about the evil effects of fatigue in the child. It was based upon the mother that was in a condition not to be overtaxed. Today I want to tell you about the same complaint suffered by [illegible].

It is common to hear somebody say, as a consolation, "I feel out of sorts" or "sick of pep." Of course, this symptom may be but from the lack of rest, sleep or recreation. It may accompany pregnancy, indigestion or some constitutional disturbance.

Disorders of the intestinal tract are really the common causes of fatigue in the adult. Those who suffer from a so-called auto-intoxication, or putrefaction of the food or the waste products, or who have constipation, are sure to suffer from chronic fatigue. Since the intestinal tract is concerned with the removal of certain waste materials, any disturbance of this part of the anatomy lays the foundation for chronic fatigue. Disturbance in this region is an underlying cause of auto-intoxication.

Or the fatigue follows any marked digestive disorder. It is brought on by the absorption of poisons which normally are passed off promptly in the stools and urine.

It is easy to see how continuous putrefaction and fermentation in the intestinal tract may lead to an excessive accumulation of poisonous substances within the body. Then there is produced that common condition known as "self-poisoning," or auto-intoxication. It is easily corrected, but too frequently is overlooked or neglected.

Sufferers from this condition complain of headache, restlessness, fatigue, irritability, heart burn, sickness, indigestion and many other digestive complaints. It is strange, but many of the victims suffer from this condition for years, steadily avoiding medical care. Sometimes they are in terror of seeing the doctor because of the fear they will be told they may have something incurable.

If you suffer from any one of these disorders and are constantly fatigued by all means consult with your doctor. A thorough physical examination will reveal the cause of your discomfort.

If necessary, the doctor will advise a complete X-ray examination. This may reveal some disorder which, if neglected, may prove serious. Prompt medical attention will prevent further damage and do away with irritation of this vital and important part of the human anatomy.

SATURDAY, - - - - JULY 24, 1937

Whipped and Whining.

Any one who still thinks there is glamor about the desperado should be made to read the story of the capture of Pete Traxler, No 1 bad man of the southwest where fiction has given the bad man a special kind of romanticism.

Two middle aged, unarmed farmers whom Traxler and Fred Tindol, his pal, had captured as hostages grabbed guns away from the desperadoes and shot both of them.

"Don't shoot again," screamed Traxler groveling in the dirt. Tindol said nothing for a farmer's bullet had killed him. That's the way most of the gunmen have ended their careers. There's nothing heroic about a desperado outwitted by a peaceable farmer and howling to save his worse than useless life.

Starving Trouble.

A simple and effective way of ending the annoyances of certain natural pests is to remove all their food supplies, whereupon they either move away or die off.

Ohio's affable and politically astute Governor Davey has adopted the same methods for curtailing the activities of certain elements in the state government which have been pestering him by inquiring deeply into expenditures of his administration.

It takes money to investigate and the governor cut off the supply of vetoing these items in the appropriations bill which he has just signed. The popular and righteous plea of economy is given as the reason for his move. The men behind the probes contend that their investigations would have shown the way to economies which would have made the expenditure highly justified.

Immediately following the governor's action comes the declaration that the investigations will go on, even though funds are lacking. This probably does not frighten Mr. Davey to any great extent. He has been in politics too long to know that political crusaders, even the zealous ones, do not long continue any campaign when the spring of financial compensation has gone dry.

State expenses, like those of the national government, have soared and there has been little honest effort at retrenchment. It is high time that the state and the nation spend less but there are better places to stop the spending than at those points which promised to point the way to retrenchment.

From College To Job.

One of the healthiest signs of normalcy in American life is the report that most of the boys and girls who graduated from American colleges last month have found jobs at good wages.

During the depression the graduate faced a bad situation in a world where applicants far outnumbered the positions to be filled and where a personal pull was of more importance than preparation in getting a chance to translate theory into the actual practice of employment.

Both industry and commerce have developed a new feeling for the college graduate. Figures from American colleges show that the average starting salary for graduates is $1,500 a year, which is more than many an untrained man makes in any year of his life. The trend toward combining the theoretical training of college with a certain amount of practical work had done much toward making the graduates more welcome among officials of industry and in business.

A few years ago youth was inclined to watch the procession of the educated unemployed with a "what's the use?" attitude but college training is proving itself this year in actual payroll figures which should speak eloquently to boys and girls of the value of a good education.

Junior Won't Starve.

If Junior wants to grow up to be a fiddler don't tell him that he probably will starve to death in an attic. Musicians nowadays are more likely to end up at lobster suppers in penthouses.

Music has become big business, thanks largely to the fact that America refuses to eat supper except to the tunes of a dance orchestra as big as Sousa's band and much more versatile.

Few in the midwest have heard of Meyer Davis but down east he is the busiest of the dance dinning maestros and was enlisted for the duPont-Roosevelt wedding party. Mr. Davis maintains a suite of eight offices near Park avenue, a staff of assistant executives, a corps of secretaries, a crew of music arrangers, a librarian and an auditor who runs his orchestra as a big business enterprise.

Band members with any of the big name orchestras earn much more than the average junior executive in business. Art gets the money and if Junior grows up to be a fiddler he probably will die from worry over his income tax.

Now It Can Be Told

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1937, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, July 24—The inside story of what happened in the historic meeting of the senate judiciary committee on Thursday of this week can now be told, and it reveals that, contrary to the general impression of a compromise, the plan proposed by Vice President Garner was turned down by the committee.

The senate judiciary committee, it develops, was appealed to by the vice president and Leader Barkley to save President Roosevelt from the appearance of defeat by postponing the "motion to recommit" until after such time as the senate could pass a new bill taking up certain procedural reforms in the lower courts. The committee voted with but few dissenting voices to lay aside the suggestion and instead directed Senator Logan to go before the senate and make immediately the motion to send back to committee the so-called substitute which has been for several weeks before the senate. The judiciary committee, moreover, gave Mr. Logan a memorandum which he was directed to lay before the senate so there could be a record of what was agreed to. The contents of the memorandum came out in response to questions by other senators.

Here is a detailed account of what happened in the senate judiciary committee:

1. In attendance were practically all the members, but, in addition, a visiting committee consisting of Vice President Garner, Senator Barkley and Senator Wheeler was present.

2. Senator Barkley made a speech appealing to his Democratic brethren to lay aside their disagreements and unite to help him in starting off his career as leader of the senate. He recognized that his position was a difficult one and he modestly remarked that he lacked the great experience in that task which his distinguished predecessor had possessed. He said substantially that he represented the senate majority but also the White House and that he was willing to act as go-between in any compromise proposals that might be made. He laid emphasis on party unity and on the importance of the program which he said the vice president would outline.

3. Vice President Garner advocated that the judiciary committee take a bill from among those which the house had passed and put such amendments upon it as might be found satisfactory to the committee. He urged that the committee if possible bring about a unanimous agreement in its report to the senate on these amendments to the house bill and that if and when the new bill was passed then, "in decent time," the Logan substitute which has been before the senate should be disposed of either by being referred back to the committee, or be laid on the table or disposed of in any other way. There followed a colloquy which was in substance as follows:

"Mr. Vice President," said one of the senators, "what can the committee do with the subject now before the senate? We cannot do anything till that bill is referred back to us. Why ask an unreasonable thing?"

"That's a fair question," replied Mr. Garner in effect, "and I'll answer it. It's just too much of a slap at the President to recommit the bill now. It will all go along smoothly if you carry out my suggestion. We know you have the votes to recommit, but we ask you not to do it but go along and bring in unanimously another bill—a house bill. This would leave out the supreme court, the coving judges for the lower courts, the 'proctor' for the supreme court. I'm for my country first and certain reforms are necessary and you yourselves have indicated they are necessary, and I am second for my party. I think this is the way to prevent sore feelings which might result from immediate recommital of the bill. And, thirdly, I'm for my President. I don't want him hurt."

4. At this point Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada is said to have remarked that if party harmony were desired it might be a good idea for the administration to call off Joe Keenan of the attorney general's office and Jim Farley. Presumably this referred to the reported activity of Messrs. Keenan and Farley who recommend appointments to the President and who have been charged with using federal appointments to influence the action of senators or to arouse political opposition in the home states of senators opposing the President's scheme to pack the court.

5. Senator Wheeler of Montana discussed various features of the vice president's proposal and recommended that there also be an understanding with respect to a provision in the proposed bill relative to new judges in the lower courts. He declared that new judges should be appointed only when needed and not on the basis of age. He suggested, too, that provisions be included to expedite appeals.

6. Senator Connally of Texas suggested to Senator Wheeler and he agreed that what is known as the three-judge statute be amended to require that injunctions be issued only by a three-judge court where there is a claim of unconstitutionality of a federal statute.

7. At this point the visiting committee consisting of Messrs. Garner, Barkley and Wheeler left and the judiciary committee went into formal session. It appeared at once that only a few were willing to accept the compromise plan, but that everybody was willing to accept a proposal to work out a new bill as soon as the old bill could be sent back to the committee by vote of the senate. Even Senator Ashurst, who was in the chair, remarked somewhat as follows: "I think we should bury the dead before we start conceiving a new child."

8. Senator Burke of Nebraska, one of the leaders in the fight to save the Constitution, moved that the sponsor of the substitute bill before the senate, namely Mr. Logan of Kentucky, be directed by the committee to move in the senate to recommit the bill before the senate. He was directed to do this at the earliest time he could secure the floor and to state to the senate in making his motion that, if the bill were recommitted to the judiciary committee, there would be reported by the committee within ten days a new bill which had come over from the house.

9. After discussion, the understanding was put in memorandum form and given to Senator Logan to use in order to answer any questions that might arise on the senate floor. The memorandum in Senator O'Mahoney's handwriting provided:

(A) No change in the supreme court.
(B) No proctor for the supreme court.
(C) No roving judges for the lower courts.
(D) Direct appeal to the supreme court on constitutional questions and amendment of three-judge statute.
(E) Intervention of the attorney general to be permitted in cases involving constitutionality of statutes.
(F) Assignment of judges by senior circuit judges.
(G) New judges in lower courts to be appointed on basis of need—not age.

10. There was at times in the committee some heated discussion, but in the end the motion carried with a voice vote in which the dissent was negligible—not more than three members.

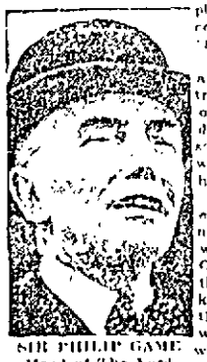
Thus ends the story of what happened in the committee. When the motion to recommit was before the senate, several senators who had been planning to vote for the President's court bill felt released from obligation to the White House and joined opponents of the court packing scheme in voting to refer the measure to the judiciary committee. This made the vote 70 to 20, but actually this does not represent the true record of how close the vote might have been if a vote on the Logan substitute had ever been taken. Outwardly it appears that the motion to recommit had the blessing of the administration, for even Senator Barkley voted in the affirmative. But the true defeat came a few nights ago when, to a determined group of 44 votes, were added seven Democrat senators who had been non-committal.

Police Efficiency

By JOHN H. MARTIN,
Written for The Associated Press

LONDON, July 24—Within the granite walls of London's famous police organization all is confusion. But efficiency never had a better mask.

In cramped offices off the labyrinthian corridors of Scotland Yard, mild-mannered men smoothly direct the activities of 21,000 uniformed bobbies and inspectors who supply the germ of countless fiction "thrillers."



SIR PHILIP GAME
Head of The Yard.

Charts and maps are emphasized in tracking criminals over Greater London, an area of some 700 miles filled with eight and a half million persons. Small flags show every crime-infested neighborhood and what the crime was. Officers who study these charts often know in advance the most likely place where a marauder will appear.

Telephones flash news to all affected police stations and signal lights atop police boxes summon roving bobbies, some of whom ride bicycles. Morse code instead of voice is favored for radio communications with cruising police cars.

The yard never solves a national case unless it is asked.

BERNARD SPILSBURY
Scientific Sherlock.

Its only national functions are the fingerprint and criminal record divisions. From 25,000 to 30,000 prints are added yearly to the collection now totalling six million.

The yard is a great listener. Its memory mechanical but no less amazing. It sets up every hypothetical case for the defense. Not until every possibility in the defendant's favor has been dissipated does the yard crack down on a man. Then it usually is just a matter of court procedure before sentence is passed.

Bobbies Unarmed.

In the detective personnel of more than 1,000 plain clothesmen are squads of five men who work under one chief. Each of these men in turn has charge of a group. All go about their work showing extraordinary ability for keeping out of each other's way.

Scotland Yard bobbies are unarmed. They carry short wooden truncheons for use in extreme cases, but they count on their fists mainly.

The detectives, too, only draw on the large store of weapons at headquarters when they're assured of a tough time. Gunplay in England is rare.

Pathologist Is "Sherlock."

The yard's great consulting "Sherlock" is the prominent pathologist, Sir Bernard Spilsbury.

Scorning heroics, he works in his laboratory in Gray's Inn road, never rushes to the scene of the crime for overlooked clues nor barks at lesser minds. He gets the facts and sets to work, combining intelligence and common sense with his knowledge of medical science.

Don't get the idea Scotland Yard is infallible, although you may think it should be when you learn there are an estimated 20 policemen to every known criminal in London.

Just as in every country, there are many unsolved murders and notorious robberies on the yard's crime sheet.

The Brighton trunk murders, for instance, are still unsolved.

In both cases, the hacked remains of a woman were found in a trunk that had been checked at the Brighton railway station.

Crime Bill Is $135,000,000.

Then there is "Flannel Foot," a notorious petty burglar who got his name by wearing flannel strips or socks over his shoes to deaden his movements. His exploits have amused the English and confounded the yard for more than 25 years.

Officially, the home secretary is head of the yard but actively Sir Philip Game is. An exacting man, Sir Philip is busy modernizing equipment and methods, and trying to reduce London's contribution to the nation's annual crime bill, estimated at $135,000,000.

About $15,000,000 a year is spent in running Scotland Yard, which gets its name from the site of a lodging which served the old Scottish monarchs when they visited England.

Wherein Democracies Differ

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, July 24—The proposal to establish presidential control of the federal courts has been defeated so emphatically that it will be a long time, to use the words of the senate committee, before its parallel will again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America. For what Mr. Roosevelt could not do when he was at the height of his popularity and in power, neither he nor his successors are likely soon to try again to do.

In the heat of this five months' struggle a prohibition against impairment of judicial independence has been welded into the traditions of the country. From now on this prohibition is as binding as if it were expressly written into the law; it has been made one of the great usages of the Constitution, like the rule that the Electoral College must register the popular vote, like the rule that no President may have more than two terms.

From the beginning the leaders in this struggle have been conscious that they were writing a chapter in the history of constitutional liberty. That was the source of their strength. They believed, with a conviction that overrode all other considerations, that they were defending and reaffirming the historic principle upon which depends the maintenance of all individual rights. It is the principle proclaimed more than three hundred years ago in England when Chief Justice Coke told James the First that even the King was "under God and the law." Since that historic occasion the champions of liberty in England, their successors here, their colleagues in all free countries, have always understood that the rights of men could be guaranteed only if their rights could be determined before an independent judiciary.

Without courts that the sovereign does not control, the rights of men can rest on no secure foundation. In Russia today, for example, there is a constitution which proclaims most eloquently the essential rights of man. But it is meaningless. For no dissenter can enforce his rights; there are no courts that are anything but the instruments of the dictatorship, and civil rights under the Russian constitution are the cruelest kind of mockery.

The deepest difference between a free government and a despotism lies precisely here: in a free state the government is under the law. They make the law as they see fit and they administer the law as they choose. The individual has no rights which he can enforce as against the government.

It was this fundamental distinction between freedom and despotism that the President's proposal ignored. And though one can readily admit, and all his opponents did admit, that there were just grievances against the courts, it was of the very highest importance that the distinction between freedom and despotism should not be in the slightest degree confused. It has not been confused. It has been made clearer—thanks to the gallant men under Senator Wheeler's leadership who risked their political lives in this struggle.

By their victory genuine progressivism has been distinguished from the thoughtless, inexperienced and uneducated, counterfeit progressivism which sees no solution for any problem except to aggrandize the uncontrolled personal power of the Executive.

For it is certain that in the modern age there must be a great expansion of government activity and that social control through government regulation is indispensable. But if this enlargement of government and this regulation for social control are not to become an intolerably complicated, despotic corrupt and biased engine of oppression, there must be no doubt about the right of the individual and of minorities to challenge the actions of government before independent and fearless courts of justice.

In so far as the government grows stronger, it is more than ever essential that the courts should not be, or appear to be, its agents. A very powerful government can in the long run be tolerable only if the courts are free. Great power can be entrusted to congress, to the President, to boards and commissions only if that power is defined in a law which can be tested and enforced in the courts.

This great truth the seasoned liberals of America have now vindicated and for that they will be gratefully remembered. They have done their part in the long struggle, now become so fierce in a large part of the civilized world, for the advancement of human liberty through the supremacy of law. They will be envied in the days to come by those who for one reason or another did not share the burden of the battle, and they may well say to them in the words of Henry IV, "Hang yourself brave Crillon, we fought at Arques and you were not there."

Hectic Moments in a Restaurant

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 24—This restaurant table is a bit jiggly. But that's likely to happen anywhere. Wood will warp. No matter how we carp. That's sneaking over a bit of poetry with the greatest of ease, the daring young man—all this doesn't make sense. I'm getting confused.

But what can one expect? Invite a few friends you want to impress to dine and the head waiter plops you down at a jiggly table. I don't know whether to get mad, have a good cry or take it smiling and with that great calm that has made me famous as Oscar The Iron Nerved Boy.

The last time I lost my temper in a restaurant I clapped my hands for the head waiter sharply and when he came on the run I started to say "See here," and my voice squeaked up into the peep of a flute. So much so a lady at the next table jumped, thinking she had stepped on a cat.

If one can get through the soup with a jiggly table, it is fairly easy sailing from then on. But it seems to be getting worse here—I mean the jiggling. See saw, Marjorie Daw. Certainly a hunk of jiggle. Maybe it would be better for all of us, if they brought us rockers.

* * *

Keeps up this way, they'll have to lasso us come time for the check. We are teetering toward the door. Be fun if just as we reached the cashier we'd vanish in a sudden scoot. Sidewalk diners in one glide! I must talk to my guests so they won't get in a panic. Keep the orchestra playing. As Bing Crosby says: 'Chin up, white tie for dinner, carry on.' I've heard of tables groaning but this is the first one I ever saw pull a St. Vitus dance. Maybe this calls captain, the one with the outstanding ears, could do something. I'll clear my throat and ask him.

* * *

He is calling his aids. They are in a huddle. Something important on the fire. They have that gleam of conquerors. Eureka! One bright waiter has an original idea. He's tearing off the end of a menu, folding it, and will slip it under the wobbly leg. Isn't that wonderful? Just like that he sees distress and thinks that up right out of his own head. Now he's sliding it under a leg. From the way the old Colonel is twitching, he must have gotten hold of his gouty boot. Now he's fixed it. And is coming up for air. Beaming and dusting off his hands.

* * *

Yes, he's fixed it! Fixed it so the slightest tilt and we get the dishes in our laps. But never mind, they are holding another conference. And have called in a Professional Sighter. He's the buckaroo who drops to his knees, looks under the table and sights. This seems a problem. He's scratching his head as much as to say: "Man and boy, I've run into some touch table jiggling in my day, but this baby is a lulu." Now, he's darting to the kitchen. Something is going to break soon. There's a fellow with determination. You have a feeling that when he starts to do something he does it. No monkey doodling. One of the Wonder Boys.

* * *

Here comes the head waiter. He has a plan. I love people with plans. But from where I sit it doesn't look like anything is passing through his head but a breeze. He's studying the situation. Quiet, please. The Thinker: A light breaking. Stand back, men; and give him air. Keep those boys away from the guy ropes. See! He has the solution. He is going to give us another table. There, mesdames et messieurs, stands genius!

Something New In Unionism

Democratic Patronage Organization Proposed.

BY PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, July 24—[illegible] another election time [illegible] around Walter L. Williams of Winnebago, Me., wants to have Democratic party workers [illegible] ized on an industrial union basis so they can bargain collectively for division of patronage jobs.

Williams, as president of the National Union for Collective Bargaining of Democratic Party Workers, says he already has signed up 22,000 party workers disgruntled with the way party leaders control job distribution. With reference to the rank and file:

"In accordance with the established principles of American democracy," says Williams, the endorsement of a majority of the voters and a majority of the party workers in any given political division does and should carry more force than the endorsement of any individual or minority group in that political subdivision."

Appeal

Williams and attractive Miss Ernestine Krieger of Warwick, R. I., carried their case straight to the Democratic headquarters and even ran head on into Edward Michaelson, master publicity man. He told them to put their plan into writing and send them to the national committee. But he said it was not likely the party officials would surrender any of their prerogatives of management.

Williams, who seems to have a government job of no particular importance, asks that party workers be given a citation for work performed for the party. The citation would grade the worker according to what he had done for the party and give him a rating on the kind of job he's worth, regardless of whether he stands with the ward boss.

He does not set out the gradations of merit, but might find it suitable to grade the workers [illegible] ice something in the manner of movie reviewers with one, two, three and four star ratings.

Starring 'Em

We would suggest:

One star—Good for a third class postmastership, or foreman on a WPA theater project. Some [illegible] paying around $100 to $120 a month.

Two star—Good for a job as assistant internal revenue collector or minor executive post in the department of agriculture or [illegible] $200 to $250 a month.

Three star—Good for a [illegible] trim job, such as internal revenue collector for a state, executive secretary to some federal board or state director of WPA or social security; $5,000 to $7,000 a year.

Four star—Good for a top [illegible] job such as appointment to the federal trade commission, the labor mediation board or international boundary commission where the pay is about $10,000 a year.

Four star-colossal—Good for a [illegible] nocuous cabinet post such as secretary of war or navy, or possibly to Iran, with pay $10,000 to $12,000 plus political eminence.

Super - four star - colossal—Any first line cabinet post, such as secretary of the treasury, or ambassador to the Court of St. James. There is nothing too good for a super-four star-colossal party worker who contributes not only advice and counsel but pays into the party treasury a sum greater than his four-year salary as secretary or ambassador.

The only trouble with Williams' proposition is that even if he organized all the politicos [illegible] in christendom the job-holders still go to the boss who was elected with the ward boss or the county committeeman.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

Each member of the order in the United States was to be assessed $2 to raise two-thirds of the entire fund, the remainder to be obtained by individual subscriptions. Marion Funeral Home Has All New Motor Equipment

The picture above shows the new motor equipment of The Schaffner-Denzer Co., Marion funeral directors. The picture was taken with the garden of the East Center street home as a background. In the background is the new Studebaker hearse and in the foreground is the Pontiac ambulance. In addition to these machines the home maintains a seven-passenger Packard limousine as a family car for funeral services.

A French scientist has developed a bottle for detecting adulteration or dilution of wines by measuring their colors.

HIGH STANDARD IS MAINTAINED

Quality of Equipment Is Standard for Judging Entire Service.

The new and high grade motor equipment maintained by the Schaffner-Denzer Co., funeral directors here, is a good standard by which to judge the entire service maintained by the home. Within the last year the motor equipment, including the hearse and ambulance, has been replaced with new machines.

The present equipment includes a Studebaker hearse and Pontiac ambulance. Both machines are especially built and equipped for the particular service to which they are put.

The ambulance exclusive embody the latest ideas for the comfort of the patient. For summer use there are electric fans and for winter large capacity heaters to keep the patients comfortable. Thermos bottles provide cool water or hot coffee as needed for long trips. An air cushion mattress on the cot enables the patient to rest as comfortably as in a bed at home. The machine is available for use in the city or for long distance trips.

In addition to these two machines the Schaffner-Denzer Co. maintains a seven-passenger Packard sedan for the use of families at funeral services. One of the services regularly provided by the home for funerals is to arrange for as many automobiles as needed.

The same high standard that marks the motor equipment also is carried throughout the entire funeral home. The preparation room, finished in white enamel, has all the appearance of a hospital operating room and is kept as sanitary. Likewise all instruments are sterilized before using.

A quiet dignity marks the rest of the funeral home. Located on East Center street in one of Marion's finer residences of an earlier day the large home has been successfully adapted to its present needs. The first floor provides ample space for a chapel, family room and reception room for funeral services and the upper floors are slumber rooms for use when over night service is required. These rooms are under constant supervision.

Three air conditioning units keep the rooms at a comfortable temperature during the hot summer days.

Recently the home has replaced its musical equipment with a new electrically operated organ. The organ is so constructed that its tone and volume can be controlled to fit perfectly into all parts of the service. The instrument is portable and can be used in private homes as well as in the chapel.

Supercharger Appeals To Detroit Motorists

DETROIT, Mich. — Hydraulic brakes rank first in individual car design features which motor-wise Detroit car owners want on their next automobiles. This was revealed as the result of a questionnaire survey conducted among automobile owners of several makes of medium priced automobiles by an independent organization.

Car owners were given a list of features to check in the order of their importance to the owner, the question being "Which of the following features would you want on your next car?"

Hydraulic brakes took first place with 1461 points, but surprisingly "superchargers" came next with 1370 points.

The surprisingly high interest in superchargers is explained by L. A. Miller, vice president, Graham-Paige Motors Corp., as probably being due to the fact that owners all over and around Detroit where design features of automobiles are the subject of daily discussion, and the economy, performance, and durability values of this device are therefore much better understood than in other sections of the United States.

Nevertheless it was quite startling to find so high an interest in superchargers in view of the fact that the only supercharged car which has enjoyed marked popularity in the Detroit area is the Graham Supercharger.

Mr. Miller pointed out however that an analysis of the questionnaires indicated a clear relationship in owners' minds between certain automobile features and operating characteristics. This was evidenced by the apparent interest in safety considerations among owners ranking hydraulic brakes high in importance, and interest in "economy and performance" among those indicating that they would like superchargers on their next cars.

One reason why the survey was conducted in Detroit was to eliminate as far as possible the effect of 'advertising' on owners' opinions. Motorists in Detroit are naturally cynical about advertising claims of any nature.

The survey also revealed that 'owner satisfaction' — either personal or among friends — is the outstanding reason for the purchase of any specific make of automobile. Almost half of those replying gave reputation of 'reliability' and 'durability' as their major reason for purchasing their present cars.

Economy of operation no doubt is also included in such an answer since durability is an important economy item.

'Performance' considerations also ranked next in order, with about 16 per cent of owners giving this as their primary reason for purchase.

Overdrive transmissions and auxiliary extension lubrication were among other features ranking high in those checked as 'wanted on the next car' by automobile owners.

MOSER SERVICE RETREADING SAVES MOTORISTS MONEY

Above is a picture of the Moser Tire Service shop at the rear of 253 North State street. The shop, opened about a year ago by John Moser of 253 North State street, uses the Kite Mold system of tire retreading and in the last several months has built up a large business in tire service of this type. The life of any automobile or truck tire, no matter how badly worn the tread, can be practically doubled at about half the cost of a new tire through the retreading system.

The Kite Mold is one of the newest machines on the market and places a new tread of long wearing rubber over the worn casing. The tread is so designed as to provide exceptional anti-skid qualities.

Stage Shows And Harlow's Last Picture At Palace

"Saratoga," Nearly Finished When Blond Star Died, Opens Saturday for Four Days

Two stage shows and Jean Harlow's last picture, Saratoga, in which she is starred with Clark Gable, bolster interest on the Palace bill of fare for the week.

Emerson's Mountaineers from Kentucky and Tennessee will be on the stage Sunday only appearing on a bill with the latest Wheeler and Woolsey comedy, On Again — Off Again. Following Monday and Tuesday return showings of Naughty Marietta and The Great Gambini on Wednesday there will be a two-day stage show, Rhapsody in Blue and the picture, The Devil Is Driving, starring Richard Dix.

The Harlow-Gable picture, which the studio says will not be released, will open Saturday for four days.

On Again—Off Again is based on the situation of two partners in the pill manufacturing business engaging in a selling match for the authority to operate their company with the loser to step out and hire the winner at a salary of $1 a week. Wheeler and Woolsey are featured as valets to the two partners.

Serving as Wheeler's valet the latter finds himself in love with Dixie Lee, who plays the part of a hillbilly girl. Complications arise when Dixie's father, Frank Morgan, and Walter Connolly, partners in the pill factory, start fighting in support of their men. Others in the cast are Marjorie Lord, Patricia Wilder, Luther Mum and Russell Hicks.

Mary Boland, Charles Ruggles and Jeanette MacDonald will be seen Monday and Tuesday probably will be the last time the picture will be shown in Marion. It has been returned here several times at a cost of hundreds of dollars to the management, which is doing a rushing business.

Akim Tamiroff plays the title role in The Great Gambini, operating as the star attraction at a swanky night club where he and his beautiful blindfolded assistant read sealed messages sent him by the patrons. When Hortense Hayes, that Marian Marsh planning to be married the next day, will not marry her fiance, it is interpreted merely a bad joke. But when the fiance is found murdered the next morning the case takes on a more serious aspect. Everyone is under suspicion, her disappointed suitor John Trent, her father, Reginald Denny, and her step-mother, Genevieve Tobin. When two detectives feel they have the murder solved, Family Affair-like, and shows conclusively that no one suspected could possibly have committed the crime.

Spectacular drama is said to be the keynote of The Devil Is Driving, in which Dix plays the role of a young lawyer who perjures testimony in defense of a wealthy young wastrel charged with manslaughter. He wins acquittal for the drunken driver but eventually has cause to regret it. This story line develops when Dix is elected district attorney and finds himself faced with the job of trying the very crime boyfriend like girl in another motor accident. Joan Perry, playing a newspaper reporter, appears opposite Dix and supplies the love interest. Elisha Cook Jr., Frank C. Wilson and Henry Kolker, to others in the cast.

It was while making Saratoga that Jean Harlow was stricken ill and from which illness came after her untimely death from uremic poisoning. The picture will not be released. Last rites and the studio's flag flew at half mast everywhere.

The supporting cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Frank Morgan, Walter Pidgeon, Una Merkel and Cliff Edwards. Miss Harlow plays the daughter of a horse owner who becomes involved with a horsemaker and racing man, Barrymore, Pidgeon, Champion Cavendish, Gable and Edwards all after Jean.

FIRST PALACE STAGE ATTRACTION SUNDAY

Hill Billies and "Rhapsody in Blue" To Be Here Next Week.

First of two stage shows booked for the week at the Palace, will be presented Sunday. The second, "Rhapsody in Blue," will be on the stage Thursday and Friday.

Emerson's Mounatineers, hill billies from Kentucky and Tennessee, will entertain Sunday audiences.

They recently completed a four year engagement on an NBC program and are now arranging new radio contracts for the spring.

Tom Emerson was born in Cookville, Tenn. and was known as the champion "shindig" and "hoe" caller. Kang ran a general store in Pineville, Ky. and was the first one known to get music out of pots, pans, spoons and other odd "musical instruments." Together he and Emerson traveled through Oklahoma and while traveling they met Slim Stokes, who sings and yodels to the accompaniment of his guitar. Every Saturday night they would entertain at the town hall in Wynoka.

"Nimpy" Santley, the accordion player, was broadcasting at a local station at Jenkins, Ky. when he was asked to make the trip a foursome. Later Johnny Saunders, banjo player, and his brother Hi who played string bass, joined the group and they went to the large cities. They have made numerous short subjects for the major studios and are still under contract.

COOL RECEPTION AWAITS GAMBLERS

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., July 24 — A cool reception awaits Franklin county gamblers and "number" operators if they should move northward into Delaware county, officials have announced following the closing of gambling houses in Franklin county. Thursday night was the deadline for closing such houses in Franklin county and Delaware county officials will be on the alert.

"We will not tolerate such gambling houses," officials of the sheriff's office said. "They are being done away with in Franklin county and they likewise will be removed from this county if they be discovered."

WORK ON PROJECT BOOKS AT MEETING

Work on project books featured a meeting of the Waldo Junior 4-H club Thursday night at the home of Donald and Lowell Heiby. Eight members attended. Plans were made to engage a special speaker for the next meeting on August 1 at the home of Earl Augenstein.

Miss Gearhiser was a guest. Refreshments were served by the hostess following the business meeting.

POPULAR STARS IN OHIO PICTURE

STATE BOOKS AIR PICTURE

"China Clipper" With Pat O'Brien on Double Bill With Race Track Story.

"China Clipper" with Pat O'Brien in the leading role, and "Breezing Home," with William Gargan portraying a horse trainer, will be on the State screen Sunday and Monday. The O'Brien picture, in which the late Ross Alexander, Beverly Roberts, Humphrey Bogart and Marie Wilson are cast, is a realistic air drama of the terrific struggle to establish transoceanic airplane service. Although fictitious as to characters and plot, the screen play is based on fundamental facts. O'Brien has the role of a young aviation enthusiast and war ace who is obsessed with the inspiration to span the world by air. From a youth of fantastic dreams he develops into a hard bitten, iron souled man who drives his fellows ruthlessly and unmercifully to attain his objective. Doubted by his backers, hated by his fellows, scoffed at by the world, his home broken, he drives on with fanatical determination until he conquers not only the elements but those who sneered at his projects.

Gargan, the horse trainer, arouses the affections of two girls in "Breezing Home." One of them is a millionaire horse owner, Binnie Barnes, the other is a night club singer, Wendy Barrie. Drama develops when Alan Baxter, a night club owner and race track bookmaker presents Wendy with a horse he cannot race under his own name. The race, which is the climax, is different, in that the audience does not learn until the very finish which horse wins the race or which girl wins the man.

The Kay Francis-George Brent picture, "The Goose and the Gander," in which Miss Francis and Genevieve Tobin battle for Brent's love, will return on Tuesday and Wednesday with a Charles Starrett western, "West Bound Mail." "The Goose and the Gander" evolves about the plot of a divorced wife to get even with the pretty blond who stole her husband's heart. She gets the second wife and her escort, the husband and herself all under one roof for a night, and when a robber and his "moll" run out of gas and seek refuge, the story steps up to quick, entertaining stuff and a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Frank McHugh, Patricia Ellis, Warren Hull, Joe Cawthorn and George E. Stone are a few of the well known players in "Freshman Love" which will be shown three days starting Thursday. George Ade, a leading humorist, supplied the story idea, that of the relative importance of sports events and scholastic standards in college. Unfortunately for the crew coach the president is old fashioned enough to flunk out athletes who fail to pass their examinations. The president's daughter vamps the best oarsmen from other colleges and saves the day for her alma mater. Martial airs of the football field, love songs and dance tunes abound in the picture. "Law and Lead," a western starring Rex Bell, will be shown on the same program.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, July 25.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a fairly promising one for matters of the church, charity and friendly and humane interests generally, yet there are auguries of tempestuous, exciting and disturbing influences as well. There may be a crossing of swords with elders or superiors, or a matter of petty deception or perfidy to deal with. Refrain from strife and safeguard papers and possessions against theft or other loss.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly progressive and satisfactory year if they will refrain from quarrels and tempestuous and rash conduct. Be alert to petty deceits, intrigues and treacheries, and safeguard possessions, especially papers, against theft or loss.

A child born on this day may be energetic, practical and ambitious but may be disposed to let its energies run away with its calm judgment or good nature. It should be disciplined in restraint and amiability in infancy.

• • •

For Monday, July 26.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a fairly active and fortunate day with some very definite measures taken to stabilize the affairs and possibly increase the possessions. New opportunities, probably of a surprising nature, may arise, and these may lure one to new environs, interests and contacts.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which there may be certain definite steps in placing the position and fortune on a sound basis. Sudden surprising openings may assist this, causing change in plans, contacts and environs. This may have a tendency to a passing disturbing or unhappy reaction on the private life.

A child born on this day, while being original, adventurous and independent, at the same time may be steadfast and reliable, making friends and position by its versatility and talents. Travel, romance and adventure should be to its benefit.

SURPRISE IN STORE FOR PALACE PATRONS

"Sneak Preview" of New Picture Set for 9:35 Tuesday Night.

A surprise treat for Palace theater patrons in the form of a "sneak preview" on Tuesday night, was announced today by Manager George E. Planck.

A picture made by the studio responsible for "Mutiny On the Bounty," "The Great Ziegfeld," "San Francisco," and "A Tale of Two Cities," all "10 best" of 1936, will be shown about 9:35 Tuesday night.

No screenings have yet been made in Ohio, Mr. Planck said, but that the picture is a quality production is evidenced in that it is already booked for Loew's State theater in Cleveland and Loew's Ohio in Columbus, for showings as soon as it is released in Ohio.

Name of the picture and of the stars is being kept secret even from theater employes and will not be revealed until flashed on the screen Tuesday night.

The "sneak picture" is not to be confused with the "take a chance" shows of five or six years ago, Mr. Planck said. "The 'chance' was too great for the patron to take," he said, "but this picture is a good production."

"PLAINSMAN" ON MARION BILL

Thrilling Western Historical Drama Features Gary Cooper in Leading Role.

"The Plainsman," recommended entertainment in its awe-inspiring telling of a great period in American history, with Gary Cooper starred in the role of "Wild Bill" Hickock, and "Border Flight," will be on the Marion screen Sunday and Monday. Miss Arthur plays the role of "Calamity Jane," Hickock's tom boy sweetheart. John Miljan plays the role of General Custer, and Porter Hall scores as "Broken Nose" Jack McCall, who killed "Wild Bill" in the Bella Union saloon in Deadwood City in 1876. The story sweeps along with power and color, reaching its climax in the massacre of General Custer and his men at Little Big Horn.

Amelia Earhart's trim monoplane, in which she flew from Honolulu to San Francisco and then across the United States for a new women's speed record appears in "Border Flight." The plane was rented by the studio and appears as one used by a band of fur smugglers engaged in a battle of guns and wits with the U. S. coast guard air corps.

Walter Brennan is the star of "The Affairs of Cappy Ricks," which will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday on a bill with "The Man In Blue," featuring Robert Wilcox, Nan Grey, Edward Ellis, Alma Kruger and Ralph Morgan. Mary Brian, Lyle Talbot and Frank Shields support Brennan, the man whose distinguished performance as "Sevan" in "Come and Get It" won for him the coveted Academy award. In the current simulation of one of the Peter B. Kyne stories, the beloved Cappy stages a week end cruise to try to bring his family to their senses.

"The Man In Blue" is the story of a policeman who adopts the son of a burglar whose he kills in self defense during a gun battle, interwoven with romance.

A new child star, Ri Hould, native of New Zealand, is started in "Dangerous Holiday" which, with a Gene Autry western, "Yodelin' Kid from Pine Ridge" make up the Thursday-Saturday bill. Ri, whose screen name is a combination of his name, Richard Arthur, plays the role of a child movie star and his escape from the tyranny of three women, his guardians, who are attempting to pyramid his earning powers at the expense of his normal, happy boyhood Hedda Hopper, Fern Emmett and Virginia Sale are the formidable guardians and Jack LaRue is cast as the "heavy."

Ri is the great-grandson of James Butler, a sculptor who died in Rome many years ago, a grandson of Richard Arthur Hould, an Englishman who was a pioneer settler of New Zealand, and the son of Arthur Hould, New Zealand shipping magnate until he retired several years ago and moved to California.

A New York artist has developed a method for painting scenes inside hollow hemispheres of papier mache that, when viewed from the focal point of a hemisphere, have a third dimensional effect.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Grownups Watch Action of Second "Fresh" Musician.

I AM sure that two impulses warred within each of us as Harry Underwood, Lillian and I watched the orchestra cellist tap Hank on the shoulder with the evident intention of "cutting in" on Caroyln.

A primitive protective emotion impelled me—and I knew that the Underwoods shared my feeling—to rush down to the dance floor and snatch Marion, young "roomie" from the profaning touch of this stranger who was boldly making an opportunity to dance with her and talk to her.

But we knew—all three of us—that we were dealing with "young moderns," a generation so removed from our own in viewpoint that we had to watch ourselves warily. We had to tread carefully, we realized, lest we trip over our prejudices and theirs, making a mess of the comradeship which we of the older generation had so carefully fostered, and which, we liked to believe, was as valued by the youngsters as by ourselves.

The girls of our day, while they might have been secretly thrilled by the admiring glances of the musician, would never have shown by the traditional turning of a hair that they knew of his existence, they would have been repelled, indignant and a trifle frightened at a liberty such as the cellist was essaying.

But we had seen Carolyn slyly recognizing and returning those glances, and we knew enough of modern psychology to be sure that, when she returned to her dormitory, Carolyn would proudly flaunt to her mates this "thrill" of being "cut in on" by a musician whom she never before had seen.

I had no illusions about Lillian's winsome daughter, Marion, either. With infinitely more brains than Carolyn, and better poised, I guessed that while she would not have exchanged glances with the musicians as her "roomie" had done, she secretly was a bit envious of Carolyn's apparent conquest, and would not be averse to the chance of retelling a similar triumph to her schoolmates at Whitney Hall.

It was with genuine regret, however, that I saw my conjecture made concrete a moment later. For I knew what Lillian must be feeling when we saw the violinist, whom she had seen watching her young daughter, descend to the floor in the wake of the cellist and repeat with Marion and Bill the "cutting in" process which had been so successful with Hank and Carolyn.

"Oh!" Lillian exclaimed in a stifled voice, but there was nothing suppressed about the hearty, mouth-filling "Damn!" which her husband sent out into the surrounding air.

"Please!" I said hurriedly, fearing that they might forget the tacit agreement of "hands off" into which we had entered, and they both relaxed against their chair cushions instead of leaning forward tensely from the edges of their chairs, as they had done when the violinist touched Bill's arm.

"All right, Lady Fair!" Mr. Underwood acquiesced. "We'll be good—as long as we can," he quickly amended. With full understanding of their feeling, I watched with them the gyrations—there was no other name for it—through which the two orchestra men were putting our young charges.

And then—so queer a thing is parental pride in a child's accomplishment—I was not surprised to hear a chuckle from Lillian.

"Do you see, Harry, Madge?" she said triumphantly. "Those girls haven't missed a thing. They've been able to follow every crazy step those men have been taking?"

FLAME TRAIL

By Stanley R. Lanson

(Copyright, 1937, Marie de Arnaud)

SYNOPSIS: Fire destroys Ike Crandon's ranch house and barn. Neighbor Josh Hastings offers to buy his ranch and cattle but, as he hates him and is determined to rebuild, Ted refuses, a puncher, Scrap Johnson, a cowhand, who molested Kay. Shooting it out, they wound each other. Hastings finds them unconscious and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a cabin where a girl (Marion) nurses him. The gun puts Sheriff Earley on Ted's trail but sees Ted and Marion together in the cabin, and later, deductions erect a full, bubbles all. The sheriff breaks into Marion's cabin at dawn.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Taken Prisoner

THE sheriff's eye traveled swiftly over Marion Courtney of the truth of her statement that she hadn't a gun, he motioned her to one side.

"You keep out of this now," he ordered. "I'll be wanting you to answer some questions later."

Striding past her, Zeke Farley crossed over to Ted's bunk, just as one of his posse was making a rope fast about Ted's wrists and ankles.

"Thought you'd given up the ship, didn't you?" he gloated. "Well, it ain't so easy in these parts to get past the law."

Ted, who had been so rudely awakened from a sound sleep, took rapid measure of the situation. He struggled to a sitting position and faced the sheriff with steady eyes.

"I don't know what this is all about," he declared. "If you're looking for murderers, the man to find is Scrap Johnson. He did his best to murder me, and darn near succeeded."

"We've found him," the sheriff answered grimly, "with a bullet through his temple."

From what Ted had overheard from the first searching party that had passed the shack, he was prepared for this answer, but his expression of intense surprise couldn't have been more natural, if it had been real. It was up to him, he felt, to tell a straight story of what had happened, and not complicate it by anything he had overheard.

"Never from any shot of mine," Ted explained. "I was taking a drink of water, and turned around to see him standing up on me and pulling his gun. He got the drop, and my shot went wild. It might have nipped him, but it never hit a bull's eye like a shot in the temple. But even if it had, it was a plain case of self defense. He—"

"You can tell all the truth, Zeke Farley broke in gruffly. "Sam Cutter'll be up here any time now, and he'll take out in charge. Scrap Johnson was murdered just over the Idaho state line so that means he'll be tried in Clear Water Bucks."

"I'm sorry as well know, though," he added, "that your story's full of holes. The bullet that killed Scrap Johnson came from your gun. We've got both the gun and the bullet, and the report just came in yesterday."

Ted's surprise at this statement was genuine and mixed with incredulous dismay.

"Must be some mistake there!" He caught Marion's eyes on him, with a mute warning in their brown depths, and the angry retort he was about to make died on his lips.

She was right about going slow! Anything he said now might be twisted to count against him. The only thing to do was to go peaceably, and trust justice and fairness to acquit him at the trial.

A shout from the woods broke in on them. A minute later Sam Cutter and his posse came stamping up the steps and crowded into the shack.

In the confusion as Zeke Farley was explaining the situation to the new arrivals, Marion slipped around beside Ted.

"Try to get them to leave you here a few days longer," she whispered. "And don't mention Dad whatever you do!"

She shrank back, as Sam Cutter came over toward them. He was a powerful man with a bull dog jaw and a shrewd glint to his squinted gray eyes.

He took both Ted and Marion in for a minute without speaking. Then he said, with heavy sarcasm, "I'm sorry to break up your little outing, but your boy friend will have to come along with me."

Marion flushed at his tone, and an angry oath escaped Ted in spite of his resolve to keep mum.

"But for this young lady, I'd be dead now," he declared. "She has nursed me through this crisis, and anyone who insults her will have me to reckon with later." He glared at the men crowded around him.

"He isn't strong enough to be moved yet," Marion broke in, but Sam Cutter interrupted with a bizarre laugh.

"I reckon he'll stand the trip," he jeered. "And if he doesn't, that'll save me just as much trouble." He motioned to his men to get Ted outside.

"I can ride, all right, if you'll untie my ankles," Ted protested. "You needn't worry about my trying to make a break. I'm as anxious as you are to get this thing cleared up."

Sam Cutter gave him a long look and curtly ordered his men to cut the rope that bound his feet together.

"I ain't worryin' about his making a break," he remarked. "And I'll be a whole lot easier going," he turned to Zeke Farley. "Thanks for the tip about this kid. I'll try to do as much for you some day. I reckon the girl friend comes in your territory." He gave Marion a boldly admiring look, and added, facetiously, "Some guys have all the luck!"

Without giving Ted a chance to have a word with Marion, they hustled him out. Zeke Farley motioned his men to follow and wait for him outside.

She waited, resolved to have him break the silence. With every nerve tense she was determined not to say anything that could be used against Ted, or that would involve her father. She was thankful that she had Zeke Farley to deal with instead of Sam Cutter, whom she put down as a bully and a brute.

"Let's hear your story, now," Zeke Farley said finally. His voice was more gentle, but none the less firm.

"There's not much to tell," Marion answered. "I came out early one morning to find Ted Gaynor crawling west in the clearing delirious and apparently dying from loss of blood. How he ever got as far as this, I don't know. I got him in just before the storm broke, and naturally did what I could for him. He pulled through, but it was a narrow squeak."

"Had you known Gaynor before?" the sheriff asked.

"I never saw him in my life before," Marion answered, looking straight into Zeke Farley's eyes.

"Humph!" was his only comment, but his eyes held an unwilling admiration for Marion's straightforward manner.

Marion's strange father returns, mentally upset, Monday.

Ted struggled to a sitting position. "If you're looking for murderers, find Scrap Johnson."

Just Things

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

Why Not?

HARVEY Kalish, shy Boston librarian, stirred up a dust storm in the form of protest from his fellow males when he stalked forth to battle for all the girls he knew who lived alone and didn't like it, telling them what to do to "land their man." He put out his tips on what to do or what not to do in the form of a wise and witty little book titled "Why Not Get Married?" No sooner had his publishers, E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., announced his book, than the species were on his neck, shoulders, toes, in fact they landed all over him, both by word of mouth and the written page. The author admits, much as he hates to, that modern men, whatever qualities they may have had in the cave age are shy in the presence of women. "If you really want a man," says this brave soul, "go out after one! To her who tries may be given"

• • •

Tips.

WOULD you be interested in what friend Kalish has to say about and to us? "Forget your dignity! throw aside your coyness!" he challenges. The cave age is gone. The bold lover of the missile and radio is after all, only putting on an act for which he gets paid, if successful. The male may shy away from the pursuing female, but he likes to have the opportunity to do so, he confides. As an opening attack he advises a combination of nerve and warmth. "After you have broken the ice, make a point of cultivating subtlety in method, realizing that the right manner, word, or even intonation, makes heaps of difference. And then he lets down all the bars and openly admits that the man who does not respond to subtle flattery is indeed a rare animal. And by way of criticizing us he says: "Among many women there is, I should say, too much ability to speak, as well as too great a desire to impress their audience by continually talking and constantly interrupting in order to get their two cents' worth of ideas recorded." (Ouch) Get a cause, says he, read a newspaper once in a while, develop the mind, look out on the world. A cause, says he, whether it be supplying African lepers with elementary comforts or reorganizing the present social system, tends to get you out of yourself. "Warmth and personality" are sure winners, and what not to do is overemphasize the knock-em-dead with clothes idea he avows. Becoming a fashion plate soon after you meet "him" is the best way of driving "him" off.

• • •

The Critics.

WHAT do his pals say? to him and about us? "I live alone and I like it," quote one. "A woman to boss me, to tell me what to do? Nothing doing." Another observes that the gentler sex is brazen enough already without any help from Mr. Kalish. He objects, also, to lipstick, which he pronounces "disfiguring," to the vacuum behind the "lifted" eyebrow, and the cigarettes which make the girls so nonchalant. Mr. Kalish? He is married himself. Met the wife at a meeting of the Socialist party in Boston."

BY CHARLES HOSTELLER

Marion's Ohio State league baseball club neither gained or lost ground in its fight for the top notch position with the pace setting Mansfield Red Sox honors here, divided in the double header yesterday afternoon

In a fight-fest of huge proportions the three Mansfielders handed out by nets in succession The Sox clambered aboard the Hand wagon to take the first game 13 to 8 and for a short duration held a full six game lead over the Marion Cubs Luck with a vengeance, fully that turned the tide of victory the home team took the night cap 4 to 3 battle, the Scale Leaders to five games where it sat before yesterday's warfare began

A crowd of approximately 2500 fans witnessed the twin bill which was Marion's first appearance on the home lot in more than a week Observance of Ladies Day and Knot Hot Day swelled the attendance considerably and the enthusiasm created was just as good and there was no lack of activity on the playing field in no light manner Manager Mel Critchell will be a thorn in the home ground flesh tuesday with the Fostoria Red Birds furnishing the opposition while Sunday will find the club playing a twin bill at Findlay

Hits Are Plentiful

The opening game yesterday was studded with base hits Mansfield pounding out 17 three of them going for home runs and one for two bases The Sox collected three runs in the initial inning and scored in succeeding frames to lead 4 to 3 at the end of the third It was a total fourth frame for Marion the Stovermen shoving over seven tallies on two walks six hits and successive home runs by Lee Heath and Barrett

Doubles by Swede Gregan and Kauffman and Hutch's triple scored Marion's runners on the bases in the 13 hit 8 run second inning Heath Johnny Rucker started the game for the home club but was relieved in the fourth inning with two runners on base and no out Merritt Lancaster 18 year old Cubs ace went the route doubled the game and was credited for having found controlling his offerings in his first inning turn in a good natured performance

Although nicked for eight hits Lancaster was able to pull for a single save from the fourth inning tallies as Heath he was in The box coming after three put outs would have been scored had not been for a fielding error O'Hay enough of the 14 Mansfield runs only three of them were earned Batting during Brich's regime on the mound

Umpiring Gets Boos

The nightcap was marked with plenty of action most of it centering around doubtful decisions made by Umpire Don Swartz Visiting Manager Dewey Stover was put to be rebuked for his loud voiced protests of Swartz's handling of the game being ordered from the park in the sixth inning Chappie Gregan Marion batsman was ordered from the field in the following inning as was Johnny Erich starting pitcher of the first game

Swartz's officiating which even had the fans up in the air most of the time certainly didn't measure up to the par that fans here have come to expect The Columbus official was consistently wrong in sizing up balls and strikes and although fans didn't expect him to take too much from the team managers he had little reason to banish Erich from the park Erich in a polite enough manner requested the official to call his ball and strike decisions loud enough so they could be heard when he got going

As to from the umpiring fans were treated to a thrilling and exciting encounter which found the home team coming through in the pinch to pull the game from the fire in the final inning With two hits an error and one batsman being hit by a pitched ball the Sox drew first blood by scoring two runs in the second inning Right hander Gene Morris kept the seven Mansfield Eagles well scattered and the Sox were able to register but one other tally On a walk single and double Mansfield ran its advantage to 5-0 in the fourth frame

Mike Hirtl third sacker opened Marion's fifth inning with a single to right and Catcher Mal Whitehill followed with a clout to same field that sent Harris to third Harris scored on Morris's fly to center Stiewe flied to right and Mulvihill was tossed out at first after the catch Griffith 3 to 1 going into the 1st of the seventh the situation looked everything but bright for Marion

The first batter Gregan was issued Mike Harris single through second and on Mulvihill's fast Gregan was tossed out at third Morris fanned scissors to leave the tying and winning runs on base with two out Dominick Buster Stiewe came through in the pinch with a single that scored Harris and advanced Mulvihill to second Both runners moved a base on a wild pitch and Leftfielder Harvey Ender came to bat

Platek Comes Through

Ender was intentionally walked filling the bases with two out and Marion still trailing by a single run Stan Platek whose uncrimping wrist from right field have brought him considerable attention came up to bat and worked the count to three and two Every runner was away with the next pitch and Platek slammed a hard infield hit that under ordinary circumstances would likely have been a put out The ball was fielded by Gill at who after overcoming a momentary lapse found that the game

Bill Terry picked the wrong restaurant to use his meatticket this time Thats why the kidding Cubs are sporting a two-game lead over the groaning Giants in the National league race today

Terry has grown so used to tossing Meal ticket Carl Hubbell anywhere in the National league lineup wagons and finding him as good as money in the bank that he's become a habit

But all that was before the Cubs set up in business—and especially before they held their bargain day on base hits at Hubbell's expense

The Cubs called on Pleasant Charley Root after the Giants belted Curt Davis out in the first inning, and backed up his 5 13 inning five hit relief pitching with an 18 hit attack of their own that punched Mr Meal ticket Hubbell full of holes

They wound up with a topsy-turvy 11 3 decision and now are in a fine spot to finish up the series with a commanding edge in the red hot fight They are the betting favorite to take the second game from the Giant flingers whether it's the dependable Harry Gumbert or the big rookie southpaw Cliff Melton

The Chicago White Sox did big things across the Yankees to make a Windy City holiday Hopeful Joe DiMaggio's 26th homer and a couple of other base wallops the sox slugged murderers row 9-6 to cut the Yanks lead to six games With Thornton Lee slated to serve them up today the Sox figure to follow along with the Cubs in the fooling

Otherwise there wasn't any cause for cheers along the big league front The Cardinals sent Tex Jose Haines to the wars and he turned up a six hitter as well the Dodgers 4 1 showing their new life in the old boy yet

Lon Riggett made it two in a row for the Browns under Jim Bottomley by blanking the Senators with five hits for an 8 0 win The Athletics trampled the Tiger Tribe in the 1st end of their doubleheader and Cleveland lost the nightcap 9 8 in 11 innings The Red Sox copped the Indians 6 2 The Reds trounced the Phillies 6-3 The Pirates and Braves tied

The Cincinnati Reds only one half game out of sixth place in the National league rating continue their attack on the Phillies today hoping to use the Goat Hotels as a starting stone

The Reds today sent pitcher Gene Schott to battle against the Phillie right hander Hugh Mulcahy Schott is credited with one win out of six starts

Bob Feller relieved of his Sunday pitcher assignment was scheduled to face the Boston Red Sox today as the Indians sought revenge for the 6 to 2 lacing handed them yesterday In the opening game of the series

Feller who lost three straight games as a Sunday hurler scored his five victory of the season Wednesday in a one inning relief assignment against Philadelphia
